DEVELOPMENT PERMIT INFORMATION

- Failure to complete the Application Form or supply the required information plans, or fees may cause delays in application processing.
- If the Development Permit Application is approved the applicant will be notified in writing. The permit does not become valid until after a 21 day appeal period in which the proposed development is advertised to the public. If there are no appeals before the end of the appeal period, the Development Permit is considered valid and Development may commence.
- If the Development Permit Application is refused, the applicant will be notified in writing. The decision will outline reasons for refusal. The applicant has 21 days to appeal the decision of the Development Authority.
- If the Development authorized by the permit is not commenced within 12 months from the date of issue, the permit is deemed void, unless an extension to this period has been granted by the Development Authority.
- Applicants are responsible to pay the Rural Address Fee on previously vacant land. This will cover the costs of rural address assignment, installation and signage. The Rural Address Fee must accompany the Development Permit Fee.

BUILDING PERMIT INFORMATION

- This is not a Building Permit. Building Permits are required for most construction projects. These projects include new buildings, additions, renovations, alterations, repairs, relocations. Demolitions, or the change of use in an existing building.
- The Safety Codes Act requires that all contracts and homeowners in Alberta obtain permits before stating any work on buildings covered by the current edition of the Alberta Building Code.
- Provincial permits may be required for buildings, plumbing, private sewage systems, gas or electrical installations. A list of Authorized Accredited Agencies who issue these permits on behalf of Municipal Affairs is attached.

Abandoned Wells Form

Abandoned Wells

After reclamation of an oil well has been completed there is nothing visible on the surface or on the Land Title to indicate the presence of an abandoned well. Proper separation distances and access to the abandoned well site need to be maintained if a leak should occur. There is also a risk to excavation and construction operations if abandoned wells are not properly located. Therefore, an application for a development permit for a new building that will be larger than 47 square meters (500 sq.ft), or an addition to or an alteration of an existing building that will result in the building being larger than 47 square meters must include:

- information provided by the Alberta Energy Regulator (AER) identifying the location or confirming the absence of any abandoned well(s) within the parcel on which the building is to be constructed, or, in the case of an addition, presently exists.

Documentation from AER Web Viewer must be attached to this application. To provide this documentation:

- Access the AER Web Viewer at www.aer.ca
- Select "Systems & Tools"
- Select "Abandoned Well Map"
- Select "Access the Abandoned Well Map"
- Zoom in to the proposed development location
- Print the image of the proposed development location
- Select "Open File"
- Attach the resulting PDF document to this Application

The Applicant or Registered Owner has attached documentation from AER Web Viewer of the titled area that has indicated the following:

According to AER Web Viewer, there are no abandoned well sites within the titled area.

According to AER Web Viewer, there are abandoned well site(s) within the titled area. I have attached a tentative plan from an Alberta Land Surveyor showing the location of the well(s) and setbacks established by AER Directive 079.

If you do have an abandoned well(s) within 20m or 65 ft of your proposed development you will be required to meet the requirements as set out in AER'S Directive 079. Please submit the following:

Written confirmation from the licensee responsible for each well that the exact well location of the wellhead has been confirmed and whether the proposed development can proceed.
