What is a Land Use District?

Each parcel of land is given a Land Use District to regulate what can be done on that property. This designation is given through the Land Use Bylaw.

Changing a Land Use District requires that an amendment request to the Land Use Bylaw be considered and passed by Council.

When do I need to Redesignate?

When your proposed development is not a permitted or discretionary use under the current Land Use District of the parcel.

Area Structure Plans and the Municipal Development Plan may also require amending, depending on the proposed land redistricting.

How does Redesignation work?

A Land Use Amendment (also called a Land Use Redesignation) changes the Land Use District of a property to allow for future development that is currently not allowed.

Once an application is received and deemed complete, the proposed Land Use Amendment will be reviewed by the Planning Department, who will make a recommendation to Council.

If Council accepts the Land Use Amendment for first reading, a public hearing will then be scheduled. Adjacent landowners will be notified by mail and notice will be advertised on the County Website and local newspaper for two consecutive weeks prior to the hearing.

If there are no objections at the public hearing, Council may decide to proceed with the second and third reading of the proposed land use amendment.

Rejected: What are my options?

If 1st, 2nd, or 3rd reading does not take place,
then the application is deemed to be refused.

Where an application has been refused, no similar application for the same land can be accepted for six (6) months.

There is no right-of-appeal for Redesignation
Bylaws under the Municipal Government Act.

More detailed information can be found in Part 8 (Land Use Bylaw Amendment Process) of the Land Use Bylaw.
